YOUR RIGHTS
WITH ICE

What can I do if ICE is at my door?

In an emergency, such as a threat to public safety or a threat to someone's life, ICE can come in without asking your permission. If this happens, remember you have the right to remain silent.

If ICE is looking for someone who is not in your home, you do not need to speak. If you choose to speak, you can ask ICE to leave contact information. While you do not need to tell ICE where the person is located, providing false information puts you at risk.

If the document was signed by a judge, you will need to comply.

"I do not want to speak with you."

If they say YES, I have a warrant, ask them to slide it under the door.

If they say NO, I do not have a warrant, let them in. You may say,

You do not have to open the door for ICE or immigration. Remember you have the right to remain silent.

If ICE/Immigration is at your door:

From behind the closed door, you can ask them who they are and to show their badge, ID, or business card through the window, peephole, or pass it under the closed door.

If you confirm ICE/Immigration is at your door, ask if they have a judicial warrant.

A judicial warrant is a paper signed by a judge that gives permission to ICE/Immigration to search a location or arrest someone.

What can I do if ICE is inside my home?

I do not consent to your search.

If ICE enters your home without your permission, you can tell them clearly: "I do not consent to you being in my home. Please leave." Saying this may not always stop them, but it may help any future legal case.

If ICE starts to search rooms or items in your home, you can tell them, "I do not consent to your search."

You can continue to repeat this if they continue to search without consent. You can tell them if there are children or other vulnerable residents in your home.

You should avoid engaging in a physical altercation with law enforcement officers.

In an emergency, such as a threat to public safety or a threat to someone's life, ICE can come in without asking your permission. If this happens, remember you have the right to remain silent.

Private spaces are employee-only areas that may include the break room or storage room of a workplace.

ICE cannot legally enter the private space of a workplace unless they have the permission of your employer or a judicial warrant.

Public spaces may include: office lobby, supermarket, retail store, or dining area of a restaurant.

ICE can enter the public space of any workplace without needing any type of warrant.

What can I do if ICE is at my workplace?

What can I do if I am being detained or arrested?

Employers can ask ICE to show their identification and ask if ICE has a judicial warrant.

As in all public spaces, if approached by ICE agents at work, you have the right to remain silent and can direct them to your employer.

As always, if ICE agents try to search your pockets or belongings, you can say, "I do not consent to a search."

If they search you anyway, you cannot physically stop them but clearly saying you do not consent may be important in any future legal cases.

You should avoid engaging in a physical altercation with law enforcement officers.

Remember you have the right to remain silent. You have the right to speak to an attorney.

You can tell ICE if you have medical issues or need to arrange for childcare.

ICE agents may not speak your preferred language. You have the right to request an interpreter for any conversation with ICE or any appointment or hearing you are given. You can say, "I need an interpreter."

You have the right to speak to an attorney. You do not need to sign any documents or answer any questions before you speak with a lawyer.

Once detained, you will have the opportunity to make phone calls to your family, friends, community leaders, or attorney.

In detention, you can receive visitors, including your family, friends, community leaders, and attorney. Note that each jail has its own rules that visitors must review beforehand.

If ICE agents are trying to talk to or arrest you, starting or continuing to record may put you at risk. However, people in the community may record ICE, so long as they do not interfere with officers.

You can share with your attorney any audio, video, or written notes about your arrest from you or someone who saw your arrest.

Explore your legal options. Talk to a trusted attorney and avoid fraud.

If you or a loved one are at risk of deportation, make a plan.

Make your family plan.

Choose an emergency contact and memorize their phone number. An emergency contact can be someone you trust – a family member, friend, community leader, or a lawyer.

Organize your documents and keep them in a safe place that your emergency contacts have access to.

Choose a standby guardian: someone you trust to take care of your child in case you are detained. Standby guardians have the power to make important decisions for a child in their care, including major medical decisions and decisions about where the child goes to school.
